

Panel Mount Glowing Trackball

Product ID: 5060

Description

This magnificently Glowing Trackball has the positive qualities of a palantír: communicate with one another across vast distances, small, portable size, lovely dream-blue glow, and will certainly not trap you in a scary vision of a dystopic future. Even better, it comes with two mounting holes to install in your workspace.

Simply plug it into your computer (desktop or single-board-linux type) via the USB cable and, it will appear as an external trackball/mouse. Comes with an impressively long 6-foot and chunky USB cable.

Perfect for use with an embedded computer setup that needs a pointer but you don't have a touchscreen. Plus it glows!

Technical Details

